

Conflict of Interest Declarations by Contributing Editors of the Special Issue on Early-Career Scientists, Sponsored by Illumina

mSystems[®] vol. 4, no. 3, is a special issue sponsored by Illumina. In accordance with guidelines published by the U.S. National Library of Medicine and the International Committee of Medical Journal Editors, ASM provides the following disclosure statements.

A number of editors contributed to preparation of this special issue of mSystems. Their potential conflicts of interest, if any, are as follows.

Declarations of potential conflict(s) of interest. Rachel J. Dutton was previously on a consumer advisory board for Illumina as part of the iSeq development, and for that service, her lab received an iSeq benchtop sequencer and $10,000 in reagent credits. Jack A. Gilbert received a $1,540 honorarium and travel accommodations for giving a lecture at the ASM Conference on Rapid Applied Microbial Next-Generation Sequencing and Bioinformatic Pipelines on 25 September 2018. Josh D. Neufeld reports that Illumina provided in-kind sequencing support for method development as part of a recent collaboration and that the analysis of these data is ongoing.

No declared conflict(s) of interest. The following editors declare no conflicts of interest with Illumina: Rachel I. Adams, Mani Arumugam, Sergio E. Baranzini, Holly Bik, Seth R. Bordenstein, Vanni Bucci, Davide Bulgarelli, Nicholas Chia, Danilo Ercolini, Theodore M. Flynn, Anthony Fodor, Casey S. Greene, Elizabeth A. Grice, Julie A. Huber, David M. Knipe, Morgan Langille, Simon Lax, Karen G. Lloyd, Olivia U. Mason, Katie Pollard, Nicola Segata, Ashley Shade, James Stegen, Zarath M. Summers, Matt Traxler, Peter J. Turnbaugh, Gilles P. van Wezel, Katrine L. Whiteson, and Paul Wilmes.

Citation American Society for Microbiology. 2019. Conflict of interest declarations by contributing editors of the special issue on early-career scientists, sponsored by Illumina. mSystems 4:e00246-19. <https://doi.org/10.1128/mSystems.00246-19>.

Copyright © 2019 American Society for Microbiology. All Rights Reserved. mSystems[®] vol. 4, no. 3, is a special issue sponsored by Illumina.

Published 7 May 2019